

The Data Controller Console

The Data Controller Console (DCC) is a new online system that aims to make it easier and more efficient for NHS organisations in London to create, store, update and track the status of information sharing agreements.

Information sharing agreements (ISAs) exist between many organisations in London and are often paper agreements. The DCC aims to make the process of creating, agreeing and updating information sharing agreements more efficient and less time consuming. The console will reduce paperwork and make it easier to track participating organisations and make changes to existing agreements. The main users of the console will be information governance managers in trusts, care providers, local authorities and practice managers in GP practices.

The Need:

- Difficult to tell the number of Information Sharing Agreements (ISAs) in use
- Numerous agreements across the care system.
- Time consuming manual process to manage/administer
- Lack of visibility of organisations involved in ISAs
- No standard ISA, DPC, DPIAs in the system
- GDPR Legislation increasing requirement for monitoring and reporting of agreements and data flows
